Outline

- Introduction
  - Lack of interest in life, life not meaning much
    - “Life never meant much to me”
      - Hook - devalue self and sense of life, play on audience pity?
  - Observative type, never stood out
    - “I was always one to stand back.”
    - “I always preferred to observe and formulate a plan based on my observation.”
  - Set up memory, vague detail of thoughts - strong remembrance in notes of event at the time
    - “Happened over a year ago”
    - “Only notes remind me of the intensity of the event.”
    - “Looking back I feel stupid for not noticing all the ‘foreshadowing’ layed out in front of me.”
- Body
  - Background - Events happening in morning, signs of the upcoming event
    - Delay

- Lack of sleep
  - Snowy day
  - Snickers for breakfast
  - Worried mother
  - Tarot
- The Event
  - Listening to 'Error'
  - Forze up, left fate to itself
  - Was not scared but questioned if I would die
  - Felt like a lose of intelligence due to adrenaline
  - Very fumbly and limp like a wet noodle
  - Glasses intact!
- After the Event
  - Felt like a bird with clipped wings, very depressed
  - Usual events of people being stupid at others expense
  - Felt disconnected from reality for the day
- Conclusion
  - Explain what I learned from the event
  - Explain current view of life
  - Explain how I changed from event
  - Show the difference in the value of life in general

Notes on Event

- Tower Tarot Card
- Snow Physics, soft under goat with light crunch overcoat
- Slight loss of traction on our road, which was worse than main road
- Mothers instinct the night before worrying about not having 4x4
- Listening to Garnidelia Error when accident happened
- 2 hour delay
- Lack of sleep the night prior 11pm - 7 am
- Played Dying Light before leaving
- Had 3 Snickers, breakfast essentials, breakfast sandwich
- Saw 222 somewhere, do not remember where
- Woken up twice by dog in the night

During accident as I remember

- Going around corner near museum on 109
- Kept car near middle of road to keep traction
- Car lost traction, assuming it was due to snow on outer edge of road
- Car needed to turn but no longer was causing the trajectory to lead the car into the snowbank
- Assumed car slowed down due to snow
- Hit snowbank, proceeding with a hit to the front right of the vehicle into a tree

- Remember before impact seeing everything slow down and watching as the passenger airbag ejected.
- Think I thought of death and what the pain would feel like to die
- No injury sustained
- Regained thought looking at tree, music was off and confused
- Stumbled to get out of the car.
- Stumbled to call mother as I asked witness to call 911
- Found glasses - flew off face, still intact.
- Adrenaline pumping
